

Women Artists of the West

Women's Fine Art in Numerous Subjects & Mediums . . . Across the United States

Cammi Lundeen

Cammi Lundeen is a wildlife sculptor from Loveland, CO with a passion for horses. This love of horses has guided her towards specializing in equine bronze sculptures. Most of her work is done in limited editions which range from miniature to life size. Her bronzes can be found in collections around the world. She is a member of the Society of Animal Artists and an Associate Member of the American Academy of Equine Art. Lundeen's equine sculpture has been the subject of feature articles in such publications as Southwest Art, Equine Images, Appaloosa Journal, The Paint Horse Journal, Revue Magazine, Dressage Today, and was on the cover of The Chronicle of the Horse.

Like most horse enthusiasts, I never tire of watching horses. The horse's power, grace and beauty are most apparent in Dressage. This is a never-ending source of inspiration for me. My goal is to bring that beauty, grace and power to life in bronze.

High resolution images available upon request